STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The payment and settlement systems serve as a backbone of financial system of a country. In India, a host of payment systems are in operation ranging from manual paper-based clearing to the Real Time Gross Settlement (RTGS) System for facilitating non-cash mode of payments. The various retail payment systems in operation include the manual paper based clearing, MICR Clearing, Electronic Funds Transfer Systems (including the Electronic Clearing Services), Card Based Payment Systems, Government Securities Clearing, Forex Clearing, etc. The paper-based cheque processing is operated and managed by the Reserve Bank of India at the four metro centres, whereas at twelve other centres it is operated by public sector banks and managed by Reserve Bank of India, while at the remaining centres it is operated as well as managed by certain public sector banks. Clearing houses are not legal entities but voluntary bodies of banks who have come together for the expressed purpose of clearing payment instruments and instructions. The rules and regulations for the functioning of clearing houses are contractual in nature. Among the large-value payment systems, the Real Time Gross Settlement System is operated by the Reserve Bank of India while the inter-bank Government Securities and Foreign Exchange Clearing Systems are at present operated by Clearing Corporation of India Ltd. (CCIL). A new National Payments Corporation of India would be taking over the operations of retail payment systems. Both these corporate entities will be outside the specific regulatory purview. The operations of Card Based systems is not under the regulatory purview of the Reserve Bank of India, however, the Bank is indirectly regulating it through the card issuing banks.

2. The Central Board of Directors of the Reserve Bank of India under section 58(2)(p) of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 is empowered to make regulations of clearing houses for banks and under 58(2)(pp) of the said Act, to make regulations of fund transfer through electronic means. These regulations are adopted by the members of the clearing houses by way of contractual agreement.

3. The procedure of netting (arriving at the multilateral net settlement) is not legally recognised but has been adopted as a working procedure adopted by the members of the clearing houses.

4. In view of the above, it is considered necessary to enact a specific legislation which will, inter alia, empower the Reserve Bank of India to act as the designated authority with the following powers and functions, namely:—

(a) to regulate and oversee the various payment and settlement systems in the country including those operated by non-banks like CCIL, card companies, other payment system providers and the proposed umbrella organisation for retail payments;

(b) lay down the procedure for authorisation of payment systems as well as revocation of authorisation;

(c) to lay down operational and technical standards for various payment systems;

(d) to call for information and furnish returns and documents from the service providers;

(e) to issue directions and guidelines to system providers;

(f) to audit and inspect the systems and premises of the system providers;

(g) to lay down the duties of the system providers;

(h) to levy fines and impose penalties for not providing information or documents or wrongfully disclosing information, etc.; and

(i) to make regulations for carrying out the provisions of the proposed legislation.

5. The Bill, inter alia, seeks to provide for the following matters, namely:—

(a) to designate the Reserve Bank of India as the designated authority for the regulation and supervision of payment systems in India for their smooth operations;

(b) to give legal recognition to the netting procedure and settlement finality; and

(c) to empower the Securities Appellate Tribunals to settle disputes between the Reserve Bank of India and the system providers.

6. The Bill seeks to achieve the above objects.
